James Golding, Head of Cargo and Airline Partnerships, Heathrow
James Golding has led the development of Heathrow's cargo proposition for the last 5 years, defining and delivering the airport's cargo strategy as it continues to fulfil its role as the UK's largest port by value, the UK's only hub airport and the most connected airport in the world.

From a passenger perspective, James leads Heathrow's relationship with oneworld alliance and IAG group airlines. With 14 years' experience at Heathrow, James has a background in project, programme and portfolio leadership, and previously led strategic planning for the airport's expansion. James is passionate about nurturing diverse and talented teams and delivering sustainable change in the aviation and logistics sector.
