EUROPE AND THE COMMONWEALTH
Friday 18th September 2026

Ceri Morgan is His Majesty's Trade Commissioner for Europe, with responsibility for encouraging trade and investment between the UK and other European countries, as well as Israel.

In her most recent position, she led the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) on international trade, international food security, and headed the government's overseas agri-food attaché network to tackle market access barriers for UK exports. Ceri also led on the agricultural and food elements of the first UK-EU summit.

Prior to this, Ceri returned to the civil service from the creative industries to establish and lead the Global Trade Negotiations team at DEFRA after the EU referendum, spearheading the negotiation of agri-food aspects of trade deals.
